SCSC Gives Money to Charity in Christmas Spirit

By Eric Cohen

Last week's Students' Council meeting, held December 1, revealed something not previously known. In the words of President David Fulford and Services Commissioner Bill Doherty, "we're a rich organization".

Council voted 7-3 with 2 abstentions to donate $700 to the Sacred Heart Child and Family Centre, an organization in Scarborough that helps emotionally disturbed children. The only major objection came from Michael Keenan, who said that it appears SCSC is "saying that students haven't donated enough on their own, so SCSC has to do it for them."

The motion, proposed by Fulford, originally asked for $500. Fulford said that SCSC is wealthy compared to other sectors of society, and that they should help others less fortunate. He felt it best to give the money to a small organization so its effects were more obvious. He also stated that by finding a charity in Scarborough, SCSC was helping the immediate community.

Cultural Commissioner Sandy McLean amended the motion to $700.

McLean also announced that it appears there may be a chapel set up. SCSC has been discussing this since early in the summer, but there has been a problem finding available space. It appears that the administration now agrees with the idea and will be looking for space.

Doherty had some good news for Council: The Back Doors' concert made money. He wasn't sure how much money yet, but the sell-out crowd drank SCSC into the black. He also told Council that a new Assistant Pub Manager, Phil Rueben, had been hired to replace Vivian Pallandi, who had resigned earlier. Doherty then announced the winter musical menu, including: Tom Wilson and the Florida Razors, The Shakers, The Spoons and The Grottybeats.

SCSC President David Fulford

In the first challenge to a ruling made by the Speaker this year, Richard Zemla was overruled. The decision concerned a proxy from External Commissioner Ross Kenton for the November 10 meeting. The proxy was dated for November 5 rather than the 10th, and did not have the Council meeting number on it for reference. This wasn't discovered until after the meeting had been adjourned. Because some votes had been very close, Zemla decided that the proxy was invalid, and that the motions would have to be reintroduced. Fulford challenged this, and Council voted to let the proxy stand.

Political Science Association May Lose SCSC Funding

By Eric Cohen

At the December 1 meeting of SCSC, the Political Science Association came under fire again, concerning the financing of their September 28 function.

The Association had ordered beer and liquor for the function which totalled $249.60. The Association's Executive had not filled out the proper forms, or received prior approval by the Academic Affairs Commissioner, Michelle Dadd, for the expenditure. The function also took place before the Association's budget had been approved by SCSC for funding.

Brian Mussington, treasurer of the Association, said that they had not been told which forms to fill out and had not received the letters Dadd said had been sent concerning the matter. When asked why they didn't use their membership fees to pay the debt, Mussington replied that those funds had already been spent. The Association has been granted $600 from SCSC and $400 from SAC, however the SAC funds are to be used for a specific function, rather than general finances.

When asked why the $249.60 couldn't be taken out of their SCSC grant, Finance Commissioner Clive Buston said that it was against Council's Financial Procedures Manual (FPM). He said that since the money had been spent before their budget was passed, the budget money didn't cover this event. Buston also said that after last year, Council's auditor is watching them like a hawk and wants all debts cleared up quickly.

SCSC didn't freeze the Association's funding, but may still do so when they ask for more money. Right now Council and the Association seem to be at a stalemate, and it may take Solomon to decide it.

Hard as it is to believe, there are only 15 shopping days left until Christmas. In case you were wondering, the white stuff in these pictures is SNOW. We thought we would show you in case you had forgotten, and so the shock isn't too great if we see some eventually this year. By the way, did that snowbank get a ticket?

Objectivism Lectures to start in January

Ayn Rand's intellectual heir Dr. Leonard Peikoff has given a series of 12 lectures on "The Philosophy of Objectivism" taped in New York. This series of lectures will be run in Toronto in January, 1983, as well as Dr. Peikoff's "Introduction to Logic", a series of ten lectures on the fundamentals logic; and Dr. George Reisman's nine lecture series on "The Government Against the Economy".

Upcoming lecture courses scheduled for April, 1983 are: Dr. Peikoff's "Objective Communication" and "Founders of Western Philosophy: Thales to Hume". For information call Alana at 781-2553.

The Video Explosion:

The public is invited to attend a free program entitled The Video Explosion. It explores the many questions people have about the most recent revolution in the entertainment world - VTR, home recording units.
The date is Thursday, December 9, 8:00 p.m. The place is the Morningside Public Library,. Morningside Mall at Kingston Road. There will be a free five-booklet series, entitled "Video - The Better Way" for those attending.
There will be a panel discussion by experts and a hands-on demonstration of a cross section of video tape recorders and cameras. Applications of video taping will be shown, such as weddings.
Here is an opportunity to ask about renting or owning VTR equipment. What is entailed in making home movies for TV screen viewing. There will be information on what kinds of equipment to buy for individual requirements - VHS or Beta half-inch tape formats or the new disc format.
Members of the resource panel are Ron Filion, Director of Operations at Canadian Audiovisual Communications; Jim Mitchell, owner of the TV Movie Centre; and Kathy Therrien, Film Services Co-ordinator of the Scarborough Public Library system.

Residence Information

Exam quiet hours in residence will go into effect on Tuesday, December 7th. Details concerning the exact hours will be posted on a flier. Also, the shopping van will go to the Morningside Mall instead of the Dominion Emporium on Dec. 8th and 15th. There will not be any service on the 22nd. Service will resume on the first week in January.

LETTERS

To The Editor

Re: Your November 23 article on Henry Morgentaler and his proposed abortion clinic.

Considering that your newspaper spent most of last year protesting censorship and controls, I did expect a more unprejudiced style of journalism from The Underground.

Why, when presenting the comments of a self-proclaimed abortionist, did you choose to counter-balance this by interviewing another pro-abortionist (a "founding member" of CARAL in Ottawa)? Surely, if your aim was to present a complete viewpoint, you should have included an interview with one of Morgentaler's opponents, the most obvious choice being a member of Right to Life, Alliance for Life, or Coalition for Life.

In addition, it seems to me that journalistic objectivity requires your using in conjunction either the terms pro-life and pro-choice (this being the nomenclature chosen by the groups themselves) or anti- and pro-abortion, rather than referring to "anti-abortion groups" on the one hand and "pro-choice groups" on the other.

Newspapers have editorial pages precisely for the purpose of expressing their opinions; allegedly non-partisan articles should at least endeavour to be free of bias if you wish to maintain your validity as an impartial reporter of current events.

Sincerely,
Mary Marrocco
SGS

To The Editor

First, let me say that The Underground is to be commended for its forthright and principled editorial on the Rauca extradition decision. In taking such a stand, The Underground stands with the majority of Canadian citizens of every religion and nationality.

Second, in response to the letter by Lawrence J. Leger (November 23, 1982) most of the misconceptions and insensitive remarks stated by him have been adequately refuted by Danny Houpt (November 30,1982). I would, however, like to address the point raised by Leger that "we (live) in a Christian society where we no longer live by the rule 'an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth". The implicit and alleged contrast between Christianity and Judaism is both inaccurate and insulting. Apparently Leger thinks that nothing has happened in Jewish tradition since the writing of the Bible. If he were better informed he would know that already by the time of Jesus the biblical phrase "an eye for an eye" was interpreted in Jewish law as referring to monetary compensation, not a literal retribution. The essential principle behind the law of lex talionis is that humans must assume responsibility for their actions. Justice is a value, a standard of society. Its worth, and imperative nature, does not diminish with the passing of time. In fact, failure to exercise justice reduces respect for, and adherence to, the very laws on which society is based.

A more serious error is made by Leger if he believes we live in a Christian society. The fact that the majority population of a country may indeed be Christian is a sociological or statistical fact; however, this is not the same thing as saying a country is Christian, implying that a criterion for citizenship is adherence to a specific religion. Canada is composed of many religious traditions, Jewish, Muslim, Buddhist, Hindu and many more. None of the followers of these traditions should be made to feel that they are somehow "less" Canadian than Mr. Leger merely by virtue of their religious preference.

Finally, we are urged to "forgive and forget". Under the circumstances, forgiveness belongs to those who were murdered by Rauca, not to Mr. Leger. And under the spectre of the Holocaust, with its terrible implications for human survival everywhere on this planet, to forget would be not only blasphemous, it would be the height of irresponsibility.

Message: To 'All the people' of Scarborough College
Tearing away the wrapper of festivity; struggling with the ribbon of conformity, there is a sense of breathless anticipation (characteristic of the opening of all gifts) accompanying the unveiling of the true gift of Christmas. What treasure lies hidden beneath the wrappings of commercial goodwill, X-mas spirit, pine trees and carols?
As this gift is slowly uncovered, a glimmer of light appears. Then, blazing in magnificent glory, is one star, carrying, not a price tag but a special message:
"Do not be afraid. I bring you good news of great joy that will be for all the people. Today, in the Town of David, a Saviour has been born to you; He is Christ the Lord." (Luke 2:10,11 NIV)
"For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son that whoever believes in Him shall not die, but will have everlasting life." (John 3:16 NIV)
The message, simple and clear, is not a new one, and we are certainly no angels; but we present this gift to you (wrapped in its cloak of decoration) in His name, in the hope that one day, it will be opened. Until then:
Merry Christmas!

Love from Garth & Dorothy

Santa has been watching carefully over the past few months trying to determine what is needed for those who are on his list.
(Desmond) Martin: He deserves a membership in the A.A. club and that's not an athletic organization.
Since Martin has been good he also deserves a Hot line so he can keep in better touch with his St. George acquaintances.
Michelle: Would like the Red Army to entertain the Political Science Assoc. for an evening.
Glenn: Deserves some snow since he is Council's own Ma Bell.
Michael K: Would like it very much if Council would establish a charity fund in his name.
Billy: Wants a Westin Hotel moving crew for events and another order of orientation hats and t-shirts.
Ross: Deserves a late fall hunting trip with his pal Billy. And a scholarship from the R.C.M.P. school of security.
Eric: Has visions of Council releasing some malicious gossip so he can market his newspaper. Santa will work on this over the holidays.
Richard: Will almost certainly receive a scholarship to the House of Commons speakers school.
Janet: Wants just one machine that will not break down.
Steve: Would like it very much if the stereo in the Pub would suddenly disappear.
Ira: Would like it very much if the radio stations speakers would suddenly disappear.
Clive: Deserves a "party pass" enabling him to attend all functions as S.C.S.C. official representative.
Shona: Would like just one evening meeting so in January we will give it to her.
Rosanne: Has a desire for stilts - need more be said
Hugh: Wants a leather jacket so he'll be able to double for Animal.
Library Staff: Are hoping for a change machine for their copiers.
Rob: Dreams of his own personal secretary to help him with his stories.
Garth: Is hoping for an entertainment pass that Larry will accept.
Cathy: Is sure to be in need of a car that works.
Kay: Has visions of Council Members with calculators in their hands.
Sue: Wants to establish a "Mr. nice guy" scholarship in Martin's name.
The Editors of Scar Fair: Are hoping for a donation from the Cultural Affairs Committee since it is their tenth year.
Sandy: Wants a microphone for Council meetings.
Merry Christmas

Dear Santa:
I know you're busy with computerizing the Christmas inventory but I'd like to request a few gifts for some of the more unfortunates here at the College. (P.S. Watch the landing, the S-wing roof is slippery as hell!)
For David Fulford: A football team that wants him!
For Martin Snead: Parents that want him!
For the Niagara Falls, N.Y. crowd: A bigger motel room and Lucasse underwear.
For the Buffalo Chips: Home and A way sweaters.
For Juan Lanniste: an overinflated plastic girl of the evening.
For Dave Loftus: The new Platinum Blonde single "What Happened to the sound?"
For Platinum Blonde: A new sounddman.
For Rick Fox: a box of Cocoa Puffs and a colt 45 to eat them with!
For Steve Howlett: Acne or mussed hair, or a wart: something.
The Staff of the Underground: patience with their sports editor.
Me: The usual socks and underwear will be fine.

Merry Christmas & Best of Luck with the curse of all students' lives to Roberta, Tori, Dawn, Robert & Chis

A cold Christmas Eve without K.B.
Alone I sit beside the hearth,
Waiting patiently to feel its warmth.
I rise and add a log or two,
yet still the cold keeps running through.
The flames will spurt, and jump and rise,
The warmth they give is full of lies.
For what I need is deep and true,
to warm my heart, my blood to brew.

Hence from the dark a shadow peers,
I feel its radiance as it nears.
She bows, I touch, I feel, I see,
Her radiant warmth that envelops me.
Her lovely head she rests upon,
My chest and quickly we're as one.
Nor kiss, nor word, nor else can show,
the peace, content, and love we know.

Asleep she falls there in my arms,
the cold is gone, my heart she warms.
The flames go down they need more wood,
to move I wouldn't if I could.
I close my eyes and join my love,
our souls depart to skies above.
Alone I wake to the fire's scream,
as I soon realize - it was but a dream.

To all those who have helped the paper to grow; Keep up the good work, we need it still. Enjoy the season, may the New Year be prosperous.
Chairman Fox

Mary Christmas Merry Kaye!

Dearest Schnookie,
Have a Happy Yule (not mule) and a brand new, bright, sparkling New Year!. Thanks for the memories...and the notebook paper. Isn't it great being able to write like this? Nobody knows what I mean, except you! Who says I'm not creative?
lots of hugs and kisses,
Quack-Quack

Season's Greetings to all my friends:
Garth: I hope that they give up tests in Science courses and start giving essays so that you can see what its like
Paul: Who knows, maybe a full-page Animals some day
Stoik: Hopefully Jim Tutti will get mildly sick so that you can take over the Democratic Sports at Ten
Rob: We're still hoping for a big fire or terrorist attack on the College to provide you with big time news (since it looks like SCSC won't)
Dave: Maybe SCSC can hire a bodyguard to protect you from the dangers of everyday life and you can be healthy some day
Martin: I've only got two weeks to read the constitution, I don't think that'll be enough. P.S. see Santa's message
Bill: There's still time for the Who to cancel the Gardens and play the Meeting Place
Rosanna: Maybe one week they'll leave you alone to do the back page and it'll be a doozy. Keep standing up to them
Steve H: How much could it cost to broadcast from the CN tower. You could probably use the miscellaneous money in your budget
Steve B.: I hope you smarten up and head to what's left of Henry's. They may have a big sale on Canon now
Elaine: Thanks for the coffee, your little drop-in centre provides a nice break in a rough day
To all the writers; Thanks, you're doing a great job, but please, double space and come in the office a little more, we miss you
Chairman Mao: Thanks for helping out, and sorry your picture hasn't been in the banner yet
Shona: It was a tough fight to get on SCSC, so show up once in a while or else you'll be back to working on the paper
The Poli-Sci Assoc.: Just because I write things about you, it doesn't really mean that I hate you.
Cathy: You've been the greatest Assistant Editor there is and I may have that book on reading my mind ready for April, but you've been surviving okay without it. P.S. I'll be thinking of you and your Boss while I'm in Ottawa.
We'll all be back for more in January.
The Editor-in-Chief

Merry Christmas
To a friend who's always there, and helps me more than they will ever know.
Eric, Cathy and the Gang at the Underground Merry Christmas and Happy Chanukah. Congratulations and continued success, you're getting better and better
Martin(The V.P)
P.S. I'm looking forward to an even better 1983, I'm sorry there are still no scandals, but I'm trying!

Joggers and the Canadian Winter

By Hilary Cook

What is it about Canadian plays? We obviously have some problems with our weather which we haven't come to terms with after two hundred years on this continent. Book after Canadian book, and play after Canadian play, we struggle with the winter: the cold, the snow...(especially the snow). It is the incomprehensible, antagonistic, isolating soul of the Canadian winter.

Allan Stratton's new play, Joggers, on at the Toronto Free Theatre, is set in wintertime, out in nowhere, in a big isolated house and is inhabited by this winter spirit, and by joggers. Lots of them. Fifteen or so are counted but lots more are intimated, and although we never see them, their presence is everywhere; we hear them (Darth Vader-like heavy breathing). There are, as they say in the play, "killer joggers behind every bush".

Inside the house lives a Vampirella-type mother and peaked-looking, fifteen year old daughter, Becky, who stays dressed in short pink satin frocks with crivoline petticoats, braids in pink satin bows and who's every attempt to grow up is squashed by an icy "She thinks she's Mommy's little rival". Mommy is the terror of the household and much of the humour in the play lies in the dodging, verbal and otherwise, done to escape her wrath. There is also Daniel, who is chased in by the joggers and ends up staying in this menagerie as Becky's tutor, meanwhile trying to figure out how to get past the joggers and to his lawyer.

In retrospect, I realize that the mother (played by Marion Gilseman) should have walked away with the play, she should have had the audience believing in her control over the situation; however Gilseman's performance was too frantic, giving the role a vulnerability that should not have been there.

The show-stealer turned out to be Jain Dickson playing Becky. She caught and held the audience's attention, playing the part of a wise, neurotic child, with great depth.

Jeff Pustil in the role of Daniel was cocky, although a bit self-concious, and played well Daniel's transition from child-tormenting to sympathy with Becky.

Altogether a smooth and enjoyable gothic play. It runs until December 19 at the Toronto Free Theatre.

A scene from Joggers, with Jain Dickson (Becky) and Jeff Pustil (Daniel).

Today's Music: Records Worth Giving For Christmas Presents

By Nick Paraschos

Together with this being the exam period, it's also the time when people, and rich students, buy gifts for themselves and others. It so happens that this is the time when the music department of The Underground and the Scarborough College Radio publishes a list of notable releases which would look great under your Christmas tree. Of course they would not fit in the traditional socks hanging by the fire place, except if they happen to be cassettes!

Here is a selection of albums divided according to musical tastes: For an eclectic listener who spends a lot of time and money on albums, PETER GABRIEL'S fourth LP Security proved to be totally different than anything else he has ever done before. Admitting that he stole ideas from Talking Heads, he combined them in such a remarkable way which made the album a hit. The concert he gave at the Gardens in early November was also quite good. This album was not well received by the critics but who listens to them? Not too many as the sales have proven.

Although the reception he got when his band opened for the WHO--blame it on the organizers--was ridiculous for a man of his calibre, JOE JACKSON's latest LP, Night and Day was also as different as Gabriel's. The album was recorded in New York and was also written there. It is a testament of all the different musical styles that New York city is known for. It had its mellow parts and can be easily described as lounge music. He really made it with this one.

For Canadian listeners which is not hard to do:
The SPOONS' Arias and Symphonies is one of the biggest selling albums in Canada right now and this has been recognized abroad as well. In the States, the Billboard magazine in their review of the album described it as "sparkling progressive pop music, recalling Genesis, Curved Air and Renaissance, but played with a bit more new wave vigor". This is indeed a great one, and together with the PAYOLAS' No Stranger to Danger, which also broke the way to higher things for them, as it was produced by Mick Ronson, should look nice under your Christmas tree.
★★★½

If you are a hard rock fan then maybe you can try such very late releases like the new (old!) LED ZEPPELIN album CODA, which is comprised of previously recorded material ranging from 1968 to 1978. It is already selling like crazy and your older brother should enjoy some favourite listening.

Also, don't forget to give him the new ROBERT PLANT LP News at 11, with all the familiar hooks and vocals of his band.

Here's a list of albums that defy categories but are featured in my list of best albums for 1982:

KATE BUSH: The Dreaming (Capitol)
BLACK UHURU: Chill Out (WEA)
ADRIAN BELEW: The Lone Rhino (WEA)
MURRAY MCLAUGHLIN: Windows (True North)
NASH THE SLASH: And You Thought You Were Normal (Cutthroat).
TALKING HEADS: The Name of This Band Is...(WEA)

This list was provided so that you can make a selection from them and buy the ones you think your friends would like. But, if you are a rather well to do student maybe you'll buy them all! Have a good Christmas holiday and good luck during the exams, if you have any! We shall see you next year with a whole bunch of brand new releases like DAVID BOWIE, THE PRETENDERS, etc.

Ghandi: Portrait of a Legend

By Garth Corkill

If you're looking for a movie to go and see this holiday season, and are confused as to the best choice, then look no further: Richard Attenborough's 20 year dream has come to life in Gandhi. It is quite simply destined to become a classic.

Gandhi is the life story of Mahatma Gandhi; surely one of the world's greatest-ever peacemakers. As a simple Indian lawyer, he rose to great fame. He was never a political or religious leader, but his actions have served as an inspiration to millions. This was well depicted in the film. Ben Kingsley, who stars as Gandhi in this, his first major motion picture, did an absolutely outstanding job.

In the movie we see the Mahatma in his younger days in South Africa. "Colored's are not allowed to travel first class" he is told, and is abruptly thrown off the train on which he is riding. From that moment on, we see a determined yet peaceful Gandhi, who sets out to liberate the Indians of South Africa; without the use of violence. After a long and aggrevating struggle, South Africa's Indians are finally given full citizenship status. Gandhi becomes a national hero there, then returns to his native India.

Despite the backing of a large and supportive crowd, Gandhi shows little interest in participating in the liberation of India. However, when he sees the poverty and evils brought about by British rule, he begins a fast, refusing to eat until the clashing Hindus and Muslims of India unite. "We cannot obtain home rule until we ourselves prove worthy of it" he says.

Gandhi's fasts are well publicized, and for the first time in millenia, Muslim and Hindu alike lay down their arms against each other. Though it was a long and difficult struggle, home rule seemed inevitable through the patient and peaceful Mahatma.

The audience is given a fabulous view of the Indian countryside; from Delhi to Calcutta, to Bombay and along the Ganges River. To those unfamiliar with these sights, the movie was a pictorial as well as historical pleasure to view. The recreation of Gandhi's funeral following his assassination in 1948 involved an unprecedented 350,000 movie extras; the largest crowd ever assembled in cinematic history.

All in all, Gandhi is a well produced and historically correct movie; somewhat of a treat by today's movie standards. Perhaps it's authenticity is best described in the following real-life scene during the shooting of the film in rural India:

Soon after dawn, Ben Kingsley stepped out of his car and confronted an elderly peasant who knelt to touch his feet in the traditional gesture of profound respect reserved for the truly great. Embarassed and deeply touched, Kingsley explained that he was merely an actor in the guise of the beloved Mahatma.

"We know," replied the old villager, "but through you he will surely live again."

Ben Kingsley in Richard Attenborough's Ghandi, the epic film of an Indian lawyer's transformation into tone of the world's greatest men of peace, pictured here with Martin Sheen.

There are bigger and better things coming up in next year's Underground, but only with your help.

Come to Room H-213C, beside the H-Wing caf, and get involved.

Christmas Presents For Skiers

By Steve Hoke

Although the weather has been pretty bad for skiers lately, it is a good idea to buy your equipment now before the mad rush of the first snow. Because of the poor economic times the ski shops around Toronto have cut back on their inventory and it is now "first come first served" and too bad for the rest.

There are a lot of ski accessories on the market that make great Christmas presents for skiers. Even if the University has managed to put your bank account on unstable ground, some of these accessories are reasonably priced.

Here are a few suggestions:

1) Binding Covers These are extremely important for anyone who transports their skis on top of their car. Thanks go to the Department of Transportation, who dump about five times as much salt on the road as is needed, for making this necessary. Salt will destroy bindings, thus making releases unpredictable and sometimes dangerous. Binding Covers are about two feet long and made out of a nylon which is waterproof, and have a zipper down the center so that putting them on and taking them off is easy. Only one binding cover per pair of skis is needed. They are priced from $5.

2) Ski Locks Next to binding covers this is the next most important accessory. It takes only two minutes to steal a pair of skis and it can turn an enjoyable day of skiing into a miserable one. Most people will spend more money on a pair of skis than on their bicycle, but they would never leave their bike outside a store or school unlocked. So why should you do the same with your skis at the resort? Ski thefts have been increasing rapidly since the mid 70's, although there are a few programs conducted by the O.P.P. to stop thefts (ie. Skis bugged with radio transmitters) it is not a good idea to take chances. Usually the thief is not even skiing the day he steals, he walks up and down the racks for a pair of skis so that even separating the skis will not help. If the thief sees a pair of skis next to a locked pair he will not take the trouble to break the lock, he will just take the unlocked pair. A ski lock costs about $12-15, a small price to pay to protect a large investment. A "master ski lock" is recommended.

3) Goggles They protect your eyes from adverse weather, rain, snow, and wind and come in so many colours and styles made by several manufacturers. The three most popular brands are: "Smith", "Uvex" and "Carrera". The best colour lens to buy is either green or grey because it's the best for your eyes. Although red, rose or a yellow lens helps on a flat lighted day to show the contours of the hill, those colours are not good for the eyes. Goggles come with two types of lenses, single and double. Although I prefer a single lens because of its lightness and you don't get a double vision reflecting off the lens from bright sources of light (the same effect that you get from looking through your windows in your house at night). The single lens tends to fog up easier than the double lens. For eye glass wearers there are some manufacturers, "Carrera" for example, that make a goggle that fits over glasses. Check for goggles that give a wide peripheral vision. Goggles are priced $15-$40 with a good selection in the $25-$35 range.

4) Boot Carriers These hold your boots together for easy carrying. The most popular brand is the Allsop carrier, this plastic carrier costs about $10.

5) Boot Bags This is an alternative to the above carrier that tends to break. A boot bag is a very practical piece of luggage, because it not only carries your boots but also your gloves, lunch, goggles, hat, sweaters, etc. Boot bags cost about $14 more than the plastic carriers. Try to stay away from the boot bags made by the ski boot manufacturers because they tend to be over priced and all you are paying for is the name. I recommend the "Ski Canada" bag from Collegiate Sports, $24 and the "Sporting Life" bag from the store of the same name. The above bags are well made and very strong and have a shoulder strap. Why pay more?

6) Ski Bag Ski bags are quite expensive and usually don't fit on car-top carriers. But they are a must for those fortunate enough to be able to afford a ski trip by airplane. Air Canada has a habit of abusing things they load into their aircraft so these bags help protect your skis.

Ski bags make carrying your skis and poles a lot easier if you go skiing by bus or airplane. The bags come in double (for 2 pairs) and single bags. Look for ones made of a rugged material with a lot of reinforcing especially around the shoulder strap area. Prices are from $30-55.

Have a safe and enjoyable time skiing this holiday, if we ever get snow!

Mau-Mau's Maul Ravens to Take Cosom Hockey

By Mike Stoikopoulos

This year's version of the Co-Ed Cosm Hockey Tournament saw several surprises, as the Mau-Mau's easily swept to the tournament title. Backed by strong defensive work by Gary McDougall, and Merv Edwards, along with fine goal scoring by Chris Tri and Dennis Bowes, the Mau-Mau's defeated last year's champions; the Paraplegics 8-3 in the semi-finals, and then wnt on to an easy 8-2 victory over the Ravens. Many of the experts had picked the Paraplegics to retain their title, and some suggested that the silliness of the teams named greatly aided the Mau-Mau's chances (while other teams were laughing, they were scoring.)

The tournament, a 16 team affair, is held to determine whether a team shall play in the A or B league, as well as to reacquaint all teams involved with the rules of the game. After numreous early "crease" violations, most players managed to remember those rules.

Team allotment for the spring league, which starts in January, will be raised to 20, so if you haven't entered a team yet, you still can, in the Rec Office . Team entries are $6.00. Anyone wishing to referee or timekeep is also asked to submit their names to the Rec Office. (These are paid positions!)

Pub Staff Takes First In Blitz Turkeyball Tourney

By Mike Stoikopoulos

The initial outing of Blitz Turkeyball (a game closely resembling European handball) saw a number of players and referee's having difficulty remembering the rules; that, however, was to be expected as very few of the participants had ever played before.

In the final match, the Pub staff emerged with an 8-1 victory over the perennial powerhouse, the Alcoholics, to notch their first ever Blitz tournament victory.

After a 6 team round-robin allowed the players some experience to the game, four teams advanced to post-season play.

In perhaps their finest performance ever in an intramural game, the Whaling Bennies under head coach Steve Sadler came painfully close to upsetting the previously undefeated Alcoholics. After a tie game goalie Clive Buston gave the Alcoholics an 8-7 win, as a result of a shootout.

In the other semi-final, the Pub staff took a 2-1 decision over the Buffalo Chips, in a game that was shrouded in controversy over a bureaucratic decision. Pub goalie Scott McMaster made many remarkable saves in preserving the victory.

In the final, it became obvious that the Alcoholics were indeed ripe for the taking. Pub Manager Ira Baptiste's goal in the shootout was the icing on the cake as the Pub staff coasted to victory.

Obvious rule changes and clarifications will be made for the next Turkeyball tournament, but all things considered, the event was certainly a success.
